Determine your belt size using a belt you usually wear

Belt size guide

Pakerson handcrafted belts can be fitted to the precise length you will request during the ordering process.

In order to determine the proper belt size, take a belt you own that fits you well, carefully stretch it out on a flat surface, then measure the distance from the most comfortable hole to the buckle end. Please, include the buckle length in your measurement. We recommend to use a flexible tailor measuring tape as it can follow the curve of the belt. Please, note that the measure of your belt must be expressed in centimetres.

The Pakerson belts usually come with five holes. The belt size (in cm) requested by you will be measured from the middle hole to the buckle end (buckle included).

Alternatively, if you wish to shorten your belt yourself, just unscrew the buckle from the belt. Remove the buckle and cut the unnecessary part of the leather. Pierce the belt to allow the passage of the screw and insert the buckle on the belt.

Please, be aware that for made-to-measure orders, returns and size exchanges are not accepted.
